ALARMING SYMPTOMS DEVELOPING THIS MORNING.

At 12 o'clock Dr. Wadsworth one of the physicians left the house and said: "A bulletin will be issued at 2 o'clock. Further than that I decline to talk."

EDMONTON BULLETIN, SEPT. 13, 1901.

A JOKE OF DUNSMUIR'S

There is a sound of war in the camp of the Dunsmuir government of British Columbia. The Dunsmuir government is the result of a combination of all other political elements in British Columbia to compass the defeat of the Martin government. Martin was guilty of the unpardonable sin of trying to do things; and not only of trying but actually doing. The fact that the things he tried to do, or actually did, were intended to be, or actually were, in the public interest, did not save him. The man who did, or even tried to do, is looked upon as dangerous by the professional politician whose occupation is destroyed by achievement. So the Martin government fell with a dull sickening thud, and Premier Dunsmuir reigned in its stead. Dunsmuir was now in politics, therefore he had no political enemies. He was popularly supposed to have neither ability nor inclination for the work, and being the wealthiest man in that vast province, and having the largest commercial, industrial, and speculative interests, he was considered a perfectly safe man by the commercial, industrial and speculative classes. Just what the Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir's bearings in federal politics were no one knew, any more than what his policy in provincial politics was. In federal politics both parties claimed him and in local politics it was taken for granted that as he owned such a large share of the province, whatever was his interest was in the interest of the province. On only one point was the position of Mr. Dunsmuir thoroughly understood. His success meant the defeat of Martin; therefore, hurrah for the Hon. James.

But although the Martin government was defeated, Martin still existed politically, as a member of the legislature with a not inconsiderable following. And now British Columbia and the nation are witness to the Dominion experience of an almost electric shock from the news that J. C. Brown, M. L. A., for New Westminster, a pronounced follower of Martin, has been taken into the Ingham cabinet, and that Martin himself has announced his support of the Dunsmuir government as reorganized. To accentuate the situation, the Hon. Mr. McBride has resigned from the Dunsmuir government as a protest against the admission of the Martinite, Brown, and proposes to carry his opposition so far as to contest New Westminster with Brown. His resignation leaves a vacancy which may be filled by the appointment of W. W. McInnes, M. L. A., another Martinite. Should this take place the strange spectacle will be afforded of the government elected to crush Martin and drive him out of political life becoming practically a Martin government. Another instance of the truth of the saying that you can't keep a good man down.

Mr. Dunsmuir's entrance upon the premiership was a surprise, but it appears to have been only one of many surprises which he is prepared to offer his friends—and enemies. For the present the British Columbia government is in the happy position of having no opposition, but that can hardly last long.

The secret of the political earthquake appears to be that Dunsmuir was selected as premier merely as a makeshift until Martin was defeated. And now that object having been attained those who made Dunsmuir attempted to unmake him. He declined to be unmade, and took measures to replace the withdrawal of the Martinites by the accession of the friends of the celebrated Joe.

REVENUE FOR THE STRIKE

The Alberta of Calgary publishes a copy of a circular sent out from the C. P. B. offices in Calgary, ordering that the employees on bridge work who went out at the time of the trackmen's strike be not re-employed. The following is a copy of the alleged circular:

All bridge and bridge foremen who were out on strike are to be reinstated, as they had nothing to do with the arrangement whatever. Please see that they are not re-employed.

During the strike the bridge men were being used to do work properly belonging to the trackmen. A number of them refused to do this work, considering that if they did they were opposing the trackmen. The trackmen were successful in their strike and the company has agreed to reinstate all of them. Because the letter of the agreement does not cover the cases of the bridge men the company which is unable to reinstate itself on the trackmen proceed to take it out of the bridge men. This is the way in the world to keep up the ill-feeling against the company amongst its employees in general which was the backbone of the strike. The company are taking an unfair advantage of the bridge men, and may be able to do so at present, but they are laying up more trouble for themselves in future.

Medicine Hat recently decided in favor of municipal ownership for the lighting of the town by natural gas. The Hat is fortunate in having a supply of natural gas available for light and fuel purposes within its limits. Waterworks have been installed and the pumping plant is run by natural gas used as fuel. Lime is also burned by gas as fuel. Of course the town will have to drill its own gas well for lighting purposes. The News announces that work will be pushed at once.

TREATY PAYING IN THE NORTH

After an absence of just five months treaty commissioner H. A. Conroy, and party have returned from the north. The early part of the trip was particularly arduous owing to the season of the year at which it was made, just when the ice on the lakes and rivers was breaking up. The party consisted of H. A. Conroy, Dr. Edwards, J. S. Edmondson, Corp. Fitzgerald and Const. McLeod, and was accompanied by three scrip dealers, part of the commission being to issue half-breed scrip to any of the residents of the north found to be entitled to it.

Speaking of the early part of the trip, the journey up the Athabasca river on the ice, Mr. Conroy stated that they could get up no farther than Slave river which they found was open. The trip that far had been very dangerous and difficult, owing to the rotten condition of the ice. When open water was struck they were compelled to take to the woods and cut a road twenty miles to Moose river, at the eastern extremity of Lesser Slave lake, when crossing the ice at the narrow, which the settlers were safe, they had only gone a short distance when one of the teams, which was hauled, sleigh, with Corporal Fitzgerald and the driver, dropped through into the water. After much difficulty all were rescued, none of the baggage even being lost. All the teams were then taken off the ice and put on the overland trail. Despite this mishap the party made the journey from the Landing to the lake in the record time of eight days. The first payment of treaty and scrip was made at Lesser Slave lake. A number of Indians from Whitefish lake were accepted into treaty. From the lake the party was divided, the freight being sent across Peace river by teams and on to Dunvegan, while Commissioner Conroy, Insp. West, of the police division at the lake, Corp. Fitzgerald and Const. McLeod, started with pack horses for Sturgeon lake, four and a half days' journey northwest. From Sturgeon lake they continued to Spirit river and thence on to Dunvegan. Along this route they paid through the celebrated Grand Prairie and Commissioner Conroy, like every other traveller who has visited that fertile spot, is loud in its praises. He describes it as being blessed with fertile soil and a mild climate. It is level land dotted with bushes and is about sixty square miles. There are only two settlers located there at present, outside of the new arrivals who are doing well. One is Geo. McLeod, formerly of Ottawa, and the other is a former Hudson's Bay Company employee named Bremner. They are ranching and have good sized bands of both horses and cattle. The winter they say, is very mild. The snowfall is only light for a few days at a time before being melted by the chinooks.

At Dunvegan Commissioner Conroy met the remainder of the party and paid off the teams which returned to the lake. From Dunvegan the journey westward to St. John was made by pack horses. Along this trip one of the horses, choosing the least of two evils, committed suicide by preference to continuing his existence as a pack animal. He went into the water and stayed there till he drowned, though all he had to do was walk out. The Indians accepting treaty at St. John are Beavers and appear to be better huskies than those at any other point. Treaty and scrip were issued at Dunvegan on the return journey, the party coming down the lake by boat and raft with which they continued down the Peace to the Crossing. The next break in the journey was Vermilion, another of the fertile and rapidly developing regions of the Peace river country. There are, at Vermilion, Mr. Conroy states, fourteen thousand bushels of first class wheat ready for the mill. The crops of vegetables are also good.

At the Vermilion shoals the raft was unloaded and sent down over the shoals, being caught again at the bottom very low water. The party continued their journey to Fort Chipewyan, the end of the raft journey. Payment of treaty and scrip was made here and a trip taken to Fond du Lac across the lake. Payments at Fort Smith and Resolution on Great Slave lake, completed the labors of the commission in the north. They took the Hudson's Bay boat to McMurdo which was paid for and came on up the river to Pelican rapids and thence to Wabasca where the last payment of the journey was made.

After Lesser Slave lake every date was met by the commissioner. Speaking of the Indians, Commissioner Conroy said that those at Wabasca appeared to be the most prosperous of any. They all have gardens. Quite a number of those at Lesser Slave lake and Peace River landing would also like to take up agriculture.

Those at St. John are hunters and good ones. "I have no doubt," the commissioner said, "that those living in agricultural settlements will take up farming. Those at Hay River already have good gardens, the results of the practical teaching of Rev. Martin of the mission there. Most of those at Dunvegan, Peace River Crossing and Lesser Slave lake are hunters yet but will take up farming as soon as instruction and machinery are available. The Great Slave lake and Peace river settlements are also those at Fond du Lac, Cariboo were plentiful this year."

The commissioner mentioned that some thirty natives had died at Chinewan from influenza. Wherever the commissioner went Dr. Edwards administered free vaccination to all who offered themselves.

During the trip the commissioner travelled some 3,000 miles.

THE RAILWAY.

Work on the railway extension from Strathcona to Edmonton is making good progress, although somewhat delayed by recent wet weather. Mr. Armstrong, engineer in charge, estimates that over 60 per cent. of the work is done. From the right-of-way of the C. & E. line the grade is completed to the third crossing by the railway of the Mill Creek at the crossing of the creek by the main road from Strathcona eastward. The distance from the C. & E. right-of-way is two miles less 200 yards.

From the end of the completed portion to the bridge is two miles and 200 yards. Of this distance work is being pushed on the three-quarters of a mile next to the completed portion, as far as a high cut bank on the creek. This includes a cut 26 feet in depth immediately north of the Strathcona grade, and in fact compelling a divergence of the grade. Also a cut next to the creek having a depth of 37 feet. Both of these cuts are nearly completed. The 26 foot cut was taken out by hand, a considerable part being blasted. The 37 foot cut is being taken out by teams. North of these cuts the work is not so heavy. The cut next to the creek has been turned into a new channel and there is a very considerable side cut. Sixty per cent of the work on the three-quarters of a mile now in hand is completed.

There is also a short section of 300 yards of dump completed near the south end of the bridge. All the work now remaining can be done by teams, so that it will go more quickly, provided teams can be secured. Hitherto there has been a scarcity, but within the past few days the number has been increased. Mr. McCormick has been in Calgary for some days with a view to procuring more teams from there. In case of delay or early setting in of frost the light work will be taken up now, leaving the remaining cuts to the last as they can be worked even after severe frost sets in.

No injunction against connecting with the C. & E. line has been issued so far as Mr. Armstrong knows. None was necessary. The Canadian Northern had no right to enter upon the right-of-way of the C. & E. or interfere with its work. It was in a switch until authorized to do so by the railway committee of the privy council. This authorization will be secured in good time.

The timber for the three bridges across Mill Creek has been ordered and will be in place by the 15th. The estimated that the road will be completed into Edmonton by the latter part of October.

CROPS AMONG THE GALICIAN.

Crops at the Galician settlement, Wostok, are said to be in first class condition. Eight per cent of the wheat was cut before the frost and was not cut was too far advanced to be injured. They will have a heavy crop. The oat crop is practically all harvested in first class shape.
